Become Savvy with a Computer at the Henderson Library Henderson Library Computer Workshops

The Henderson Library Information Services Department will be offering workshops this semester. In these workshops, individuals can learn how to operate many computer programs such as Microsoft Word, Access, FrontPage, PowerPoint, and SPSS. Along with gaining computer literacy, students can also attend workshops to help improve their research skills. These workshops will be geared toward making the research process more efficient and fruitful. Introduction to GALILEO and “Find Better Information, Get Better Grades!” are two of the many workshops that the Henderson Library will be offering to enhance students’ computer/research skills.

All students are invited to attend; however, seating is limited, so be sure to call and reserve yours. (You can still come at the last minute, and if there’s room, you’re free to stay!) If you are unable to attend any of the pre-scheduled workshops, arrangements can be made to get one-on-one help by calling 681-5645.

For more information or to register, call 681-5645 or visit the website <http://library.gasou.edu/workshops.html>.
